PENSION FACTS

The Times Virginian would like nothing better than to see it possible for pensions, whether from the state or federal government paid to aged citizens who have reached the fortunate age of 65 or more.

However, common sense tells us that a project involves a sum of money so stupendious as to make the past governmental expenditures look like peanuts in comparison, and to insinuate that at best the plan is in the infancy stage.

We are afraid that impossible hopes are held by many, and we are convinced that many folks "balk" on how to secure the old age pensions are being offered our elderly citizens. Our advise to them is to insure those who offer to sell an old age pension plan. Don't worry, if such funds are ever made available, you'll be notified by recognized authorities in ample time.

We were greatly impressed with a sheet of timely suggestions for the Department of Appomattox recently published in this paper from the local high school civics class.

It should be gratifying to the present generation to know that the activities of our school are headed toward progress and growth. It is a healthy sign. Furthermore, we are convinced of the merit of many of the suggestions made. The most frequent objection to a program of advancement is the matter of money involved. It takes genuine vision to spend for future dividends. We have always maintained that self complacency is the biggest drawback to progress.

STILL A CHALLENGE

The Richmond Times Dispatch did this paper the honor of quoting in its edition of last Sunday from a recent editorial in these columns. However, our worthy contemporary saw fit to abbreviate the subject matter so as to leave it pointless. For fear that some of our readers might have missed our original article and yet read the meagre extracts therefrom, we take this means of restating the matter.

The Times Virginian connects two facts and from them issues a challenge.

First, we note the increasing number of towns and cities installing their own municipal power and light plants and withdrawing from the service of the private power companies. Many of these projects are financed by means of federal loans and grants.

Second, we are in receipt of recent statistics showing the amazingly low percentage of Virginia rural homes supplied with electricity.

From these two facts we believe that the future of the private companies will largely depend upon rural electrification and convincing the public that the goal of bringing electricity and all the conveniences that go with it, lies upon this program. Municipal lines are not likely to ever serve the rural homes.

The alternative to failure to expand into the rural sections on the part of the private companies, is, we are convinced, projects like the T. V. A. all over the nation. Our own magnificent James River could be harnessed at dozens of possible points and send cheap electricity into the rural homes of Virginia.

We repeat, there is present today, a challenge to the private companies to expand their lines to the farm. The biggest forward step in Virginia in our time was carrying good roads to the farmer. The next step should be carrying electricity. Municipal plants are not likely to do this. If the private companies don't, at some future, date, we believe the government will.

MAIS AND LEGENZA DIE SAT. FOR MARCH, 1934 MURDER

Pair Pay Penalty In Chair For Crimes In State Pen At Richmond

(By Carter Wormeley)

Richmond, Va. Feb. 2.- Walter Legenza and Robert Mais, convicted murderers, safe-blowers, kidnappers and gangsters, today paid with their lives in the electric chair for the murders committed in Richmond. Legenza, with both legs broken, was carried into the death chamber in a rolling chair!! Mais was escorted to the chair by guards marching in each side.

The crime, one out of many on a long and bloody list, which resulted in death being inflicted on the two gangsters today, was committed here on March 9, 1934, when the two, in company with Arthur Misunas, George Phillips and George Kauffman, held up a federal reserve truck at the Broad Street Station and shot and killed its driver, E. M. Hubbard.

The bank escaped, making their way to Baltimore. From Baltimore, Misunas fled to San Francisco, but was recaptured in four months. Kauffman was taken for a "one-way ride" in Pittsburgh, and Phillips was shot by police. Mais and Legenza, however, with other associates, continued their lawless depredations.

Following Phillips' death Mrs. Elizabeth Fontaine, his reputed sweetheart, attempted to leave the gang, but was shot and left for dead, it being objected that she "knew too much." She recovered, however, and later, with Misunas, gave testimony at Richmond which resulted in the conviction of the two men who died today. Misunas is today an inmate of the state prison here.

State Veteran's Office Moved

All Veterans' Activities Now To Be Transacted From Roanoke

On February 4, 1935, the Virginia Regional Office, now located at Richmond, will have transferred its entire office and employees, except a small medical and Contact unit, to Roanoke, and the new Veterans' administration Hospital will be consolidated with it and henceforth it will be known as the Veterans' Administration Facility, Roanoke, Virginia.

The Medical and Contact Unit, remaining in Richmond will comprise one medical examiner, one contact representative and one stenographer. This unit will occupy space in the Grace Securities Building, 201 E. Grace Street, where the Regional Office has been located for a number of years.

The consolidation of the new Veterans' Administration Hospital at Roanoke with the Regional Office, following its transfer on February 4, is distinctly a move for economy, and offers a more advantageous service to the veteran. It is unquestionably good administration, and good business to place the two great Veterans' Administrations activities under one administration. It will afford an added convenience to the veterans and enable them to handle all business with the Veterans' Administration at one point.

How your MONEY WORKS FOR YOU IN A Checking Account

When you put your money in a savings account you get interest on it. In a checking account you get service for it—and let the bank draw the interest. In return for this interest the bank gives you privileges worth far more to you than the interest itself.

When you maintain a balance commensurate with your use of your checking account privileges, the bank will be reimbursed for the expense of serving you. Otherwise, the bank may properly look to you to meet this expense.

Money in a checking account is an investment that pays you real dividends.

MOTHER! don't experiment with your Child's Cold

Rub on VICKS VAPORUB

Often, "mere colds" have serious consequences. It is dangerous to neglect a cold—equally dangerous to experiment with half-way measures.

Feel safe! Use Vicks VapoRub—the proved external method of treating colds. No risks of constant internal "dosing", which so often upsets delicate digestions and lowers resistance when most needed.

DOUBLE DIRECT ACTION

Just rubbed on at bedtime, VapoRub fights a cold direct—two ways at once—by stimulation and inhalation. This combined poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases difficult breathing—helps break congestion. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

AGENT'S SERVICE: Its value is often overlooked by the policyholder because it has been rendered in too unobtrusive fashion

We see the work of many agent's and many of them give their assured a service that is literally beyond price.

There are a few who do not give value received.

The competent agent who has rendered a full measure of service—and has impressed that upon his assured—has little to fear from competitors who sell their wares on price, who dangle a prospective 'savin' of a few premium dollars before their prospect's eyes and carefully say nothing of the liabilities he will assume to get that "saving."
